E. W. (Ed) Harvey's Jo Kay, a red and white Walker female won the big Southeastern Night Field Trial April 12, 13 and 14 on the Elm Hill Wildlife Management Area, Boydton, Virginia. Farm Bureau Women Involved

RICHMOND — County Farm Bureau women in more than 60 counties in eastern and central Virginia are involved in "Project Concern," a dual purpose activity now underway.

According to Betty Latane Walters, state chairman of the Virginia Farm Bureau Women's Committee, the women are committed to a concentrated effort to contact every current and potential bureau member within their home counties.

"There are many advantages to Farm Bureau membership, of course, but at present during 'Project Concern' will be the availability of group health care protection and the importance of selecting the highest level of benefits available," Miss Walters said.

The women's committee has worked with Blue Cross of Virginia and Blue Shield of Virginia to arrange an open enrollment during May 1973. Miss Walters pointed out that those who join the Farm Bureau this month can select Blue Cross, Blue Shield, and Major Medical with no health underwriting requirements. Those who are already members will have the opportunity to evaluate and im-

Marriages Last Longer In Appomattox County

Tom A. Finch, President of Thomasville Furniture Industries, is shown in picture above, standing, as he spoke to guests and interested citizens of this area at the Woodman of the World Building on Wednesday, April 25th, following the groundbreaking ceremonies for the new plant to be built in Appomattox.

NEW YORK -In Appomattox County, how many marriages end up in separation or divorce? How does the local divorce rate compare with that in other communities?

According to the latest statistics, the local record is a good one. The great majority of men and women in the area have stable, lasting marriages, despite the fact that the divorce rate, nationally, is at an all-time high.

And, if being married and staying married greatly improves a man's chances for success on the job, as a study by Prof. John Tropman of the University of Michigan indicates, most of the local men must have made it.

The latest trends in the marriage and divorce pictures are brought out in data compiled by the department of commerce, the department of Health, Education and Welfare and others.

..In Appomattox County, it appears, there are fewer divorced people, in proportion to population, than in most sections of the country.

The tabulations show that some 19 out of every 1,000 local residents over the age of 14 are divorced. This is exclusive of the number who have been divorced at one time but have since remarried.

The local rate compares favorably with that reported for 25 per 1,000. In the State of Virginia it is 25 to 1,000.

As for the actual number of appomattox county residents in the divorced column, the latest count shows a total of 64 men and 72 women.

Throughout the country as a whole, the number of divorces each year has reached the point where it equals more than a third the number of new marriages.

In the past year alone, there were well over 800,000 divorces recorded, a record high. It was

President of Thomasville Here For Groundbreaking

Following the actual groundbreaking for the new Thomasville Furniture Industries plant to be built in Appomattox last Wednesday, due to the rain the ceremonies were conducted at the WOW Building.

Tom A Finch, President of Thomasville Furniture Industries, Thomasville, North Carolina, stated that it was his distinct personal pleasure to be in Appomattox for this important occasion for our community and their company. He acknowledged the tremendous support and cooperation received from many individuals and organizations in the Appomattox area. "Members of the town and county government," Finch said, "and other civic-minded groups have been extremely helpful. While time doesn't permit me to mention many individual names, I would be remiss without recognizing the work of Jim Smith and the Appomattox County Development Corporation."

Mr. Finch said further that the main reason they selected Appomattox for a new plant location was the people, recognizing the fact that they are capable, industrious, and anxious to have rewarding employment. "I want to assure you that the building we erect will be very attractive and in complete harmony with the physical surroundings. When completed with appropriate landscaping, I'm confident it will be a source of great pride for employees and all residents of this area.

"More importantly", Finch continued, "than providing an attractive building, I want to assure you that we intend to be good corporate citizens. The management staff of the plant will assume their proper share of civic responsibility and all our employees will be encouraged to be good citizens with active participation in civic affairs, church activities, and important charitable causes".

Completion of the Appomattox plant is set for June of 1974 and will manufacture all bedroom furniture.
